BRAZIL · PRESIDENT · 2022 vs 2026

Flávio Bolsonaro led the first round. Lula won the runoff.

In Brazil's 2026 first round, Flávio got 47.0% of the valid votes and Lula 45.2%. In the runoff, Lula got 51.8%. In 5 charts: what changed since 2022 and between the rounds, state by state.

BRAZIL · PRESIDENT · 2022 vs 2026

Brazil, runoff: Lula 50.9% in 2022, 51.8% in 2026

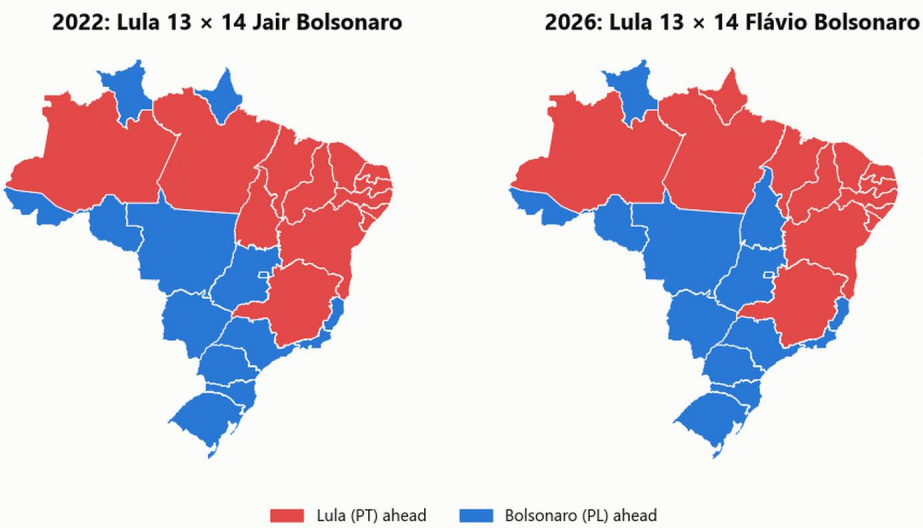

Source: TSE open data. Valid votes for president. Dotted line: 50%.

Lula won both runoffs: against Jair Bolsonaro in 2022 and against his son, Flávio Bolsonaro, in 2026.

BRAZIL · PRESIDENT · 2022 vs 2026

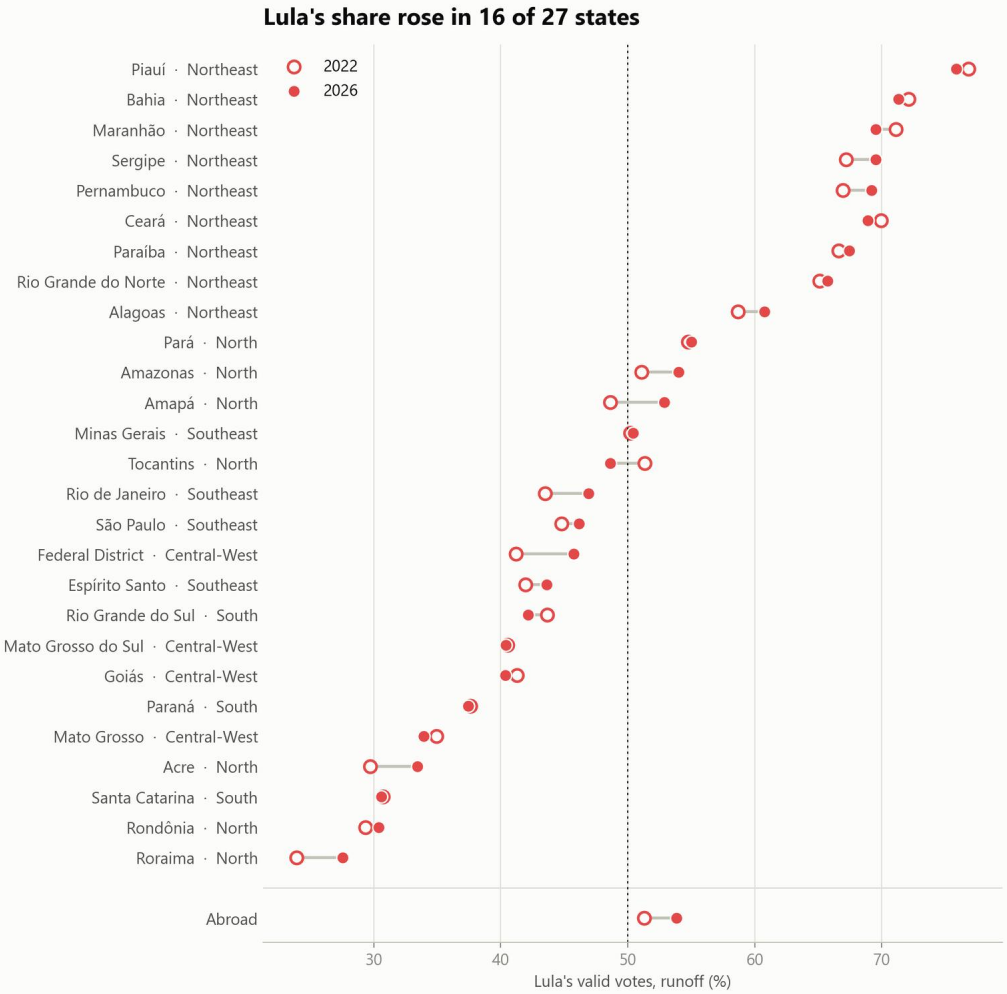

Who led in each state, runoff: 1 state flipped to Bolsonaro, 1 to Lula

Abroad (in the national total, not on the map): 371,651 valid votes · Lula 53.9%, Flávio Bolsonaro 46.1%
Source: TSE open data. Valid votes for president. 26 states and the Federal District.

The state count stayed the same: Lula 13, Bolsonaro 14. Only two states switched: Amapá went to Lula and Tocantins to Bolsonaro.

BRAZIL · PRESIDENT · 2022 vs 2026

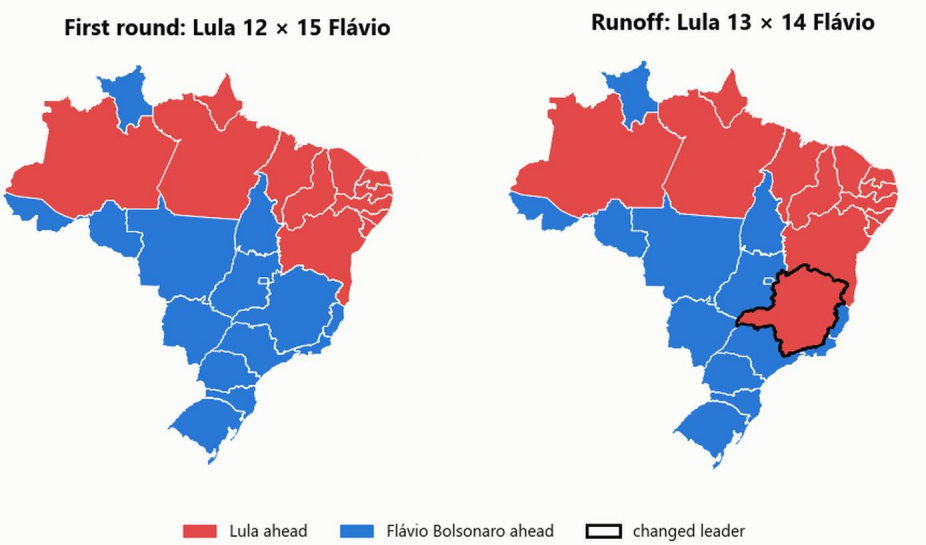

Source: TSE open data. Valid votes for president. Dotted line: 50%.

Biggest gain: the Federal District (Brasília), +4.5 points. Biggest drop: Tocantins, −2.7 points.

BRAZIL · PRESIDENT 2026 · FIRST ROUND vs RUNOFF

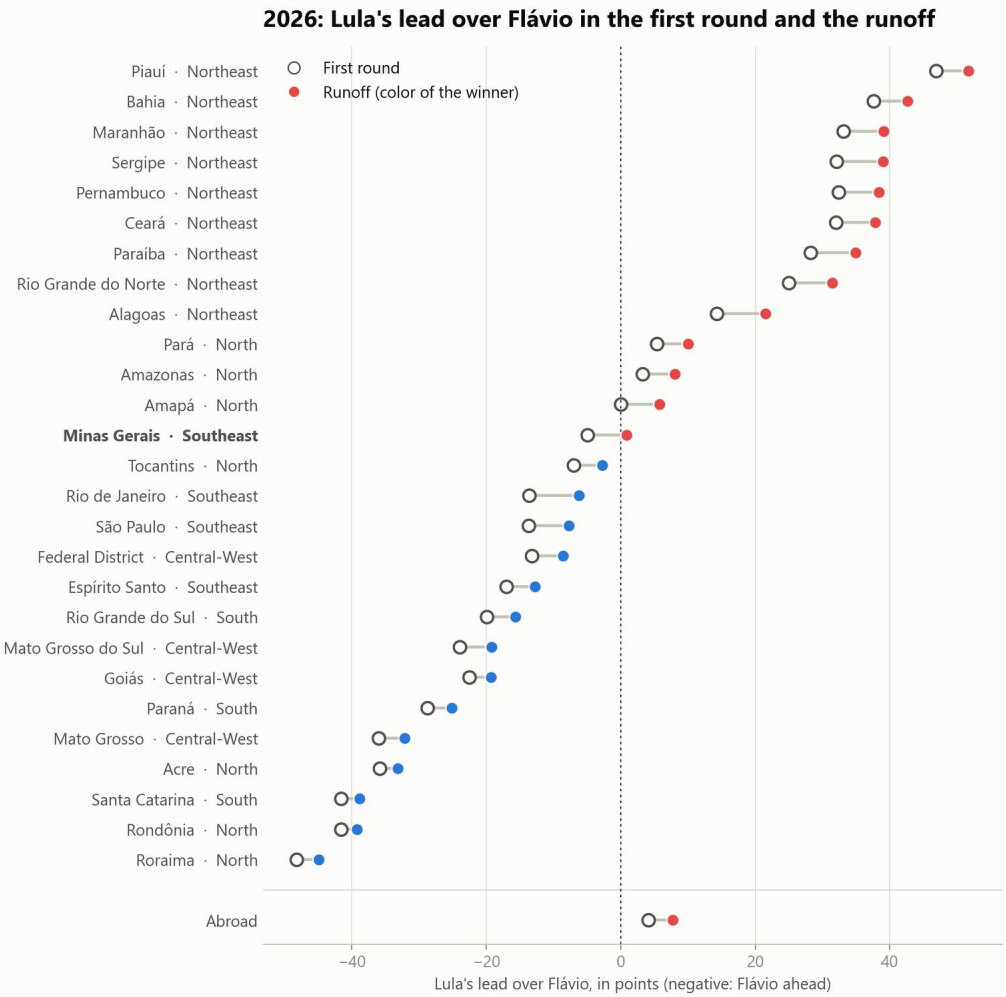

2026: 1 state changed its preferred candidate between the rounds

1 state changed its preferred candidate between the rounds: Minas Gerais (Flávio Bolsonaro → Lula).
Source: TSE open data. Valid votes for president. Color: the candidate with the most votes in each state.

Only Minas Gerais switched sides between the rounds: Flávio Bolsonaro led the first round, Lula won the runoff.

BRAZIL · PRESIDENT 2026 · FIRST ROUND vs RUNOFF

Source: TSE open data. Valid votes for president. In bold: states that changed their preferred candidate.

From the first round to the runoff, the gap moved toward Lula in all 27 states and abroad.

Check your state.

Maps and tables with the numbers for every state, built from the TSE's open data. The link is in the post.

The numbers show where the vote shifted, not who changed their vote. Totals checked against the TSE's official count report.